Introduction

My name is Anita Lotte and I'm a 40-year-old stay-at-home mom, but you'd never guess I was day over 30. I like maintaining the house, picking out things to decorate both my house and myself with. I mean, really, I have a nanny for the kids, so how else would I occupy my time?

I like nice things and I know how to display them best. Who needs a job when your spouse can bring in the money? Certainly not me.

Round Three

When questioned about what exactly you and Hugh were doing, admit:

“Alright, fine. Hugh and I have been seeing each other for the past year. I mean, honestly, you’ve seen Mort. Sorry, Mort. Hugh was such a better catch. We went off to go talk about where things were going and got to arguing in the ladies' room.”

Accuse Beau Napateet:

“While I was back in the hallway, I noticed Beau Napateet heading toward the back door. He left the catering table totally unattended.”

Round One

When asked where your family is, answer:

“My husband is just over there.” Gesture vaguely in one direction at this.

“Obviously my kids are at home with the nanny. Why on earth would they need to be here?”

When asked why you're sitting next to Hugh and not your husband, answer:

“Hugh and I have been friends for a long time and I haven't seen him in so long. I see my husband every day.”

Round Two

When accused of sneaking off with Hugh:

Shrug and indicate that:

“I simply went for a walk with a dear friend I hadn’t seen in a long time to catch up.”

When asked why you didn’t reappear until just before the murder was discovered:

Act outraged and say:

“Seriously? How could I have possibly known how long our chat would be or when we’d return? As long as we made it back in time for Paige Turner’s talk, I didn’t care if we spent the whole evening catching up.”

When Mort Guage complains about the water:

“Seriously, Mort? You could have simply put more ice in it. Don’t be such a baby.”
